Automobile Contest

The automobile contest is half over—that is, as far only as time is concerned—but it has really just begun as far as the work of the candidates is concerned. Last week we "guessed" that Mrs. Eddie MacDonald and Harry Wheatcroft would be crowding the leaders, upon reading which, Mrs. Frank Barrington armed herself with a bunch of receipt books and a lot of enthusiasm and headed east, going as far as Coalhurst. When the next count takes place her opponents will see that after all it was the very best thing to do, for, as we have tried to emphasize right along, it is votes that count in this contest—not conversation—and Mrs. Barrington got a great wad of votes.

Miss Hadfield and "Jack" Dinney are keeping pretty quiet these days, but "quiet waters run deep" and these candidates have a habit of springing surprises. We would advise looking out for them.

The next count takes place the evening of the first Wednesday in December and it is on the cards that the whole trend of the contest will be altered by the result of that count.

During the past week or two, a couple of candidates who have an imaginary grievance against a competitor, have, quite unthinkingly no doubt, indulged in a good deal of discussion that is more or less a knock against some of the business firms and individuals who are putting up the Ford car. We are sure that they will agree with us that this sort of thing must stop. It not only is unreasonable to expect that a group of business men struggling to put up and give away a $500.00 prize and then sit back and twiddle their thumbs while a couple of candidates give up the greater part of their time to knocking these business men and accusing them of being "crook-ed", but it also makes the candidates themselves appear ridiculous, for, if the contest is as "crook-ed" as they are sometimes indiscreet enough to say that it is, people are apt to wonder why they themselves do not get out of it, or might even suggest that birds of a feather flock together.

In fairness to the other candidates who are minding their business, strictly, and gathering votes, the contest manager is compelled to state that unless this sort of thing stops at once the candidates responsible will be dropped from the contest without further notice or warning.

In the last contest of this kind held in Coleman, in which The Bulletin participated, when a piano was the grand premium, the winner secured over two million votes. The highest count in this automobile contest so far is less than half a million. The various candidates may get an idea from this comparison. On the former occasion the same number of votes were given for a dollar as are being given in this contest.

It is therefore quite obvious that no candidate has the car "cinched" yet—far from it. And the contest runs for seven weeks more. By getting down to systematic work and sticking at it persistently, there is not a candidate in the contest who has not a good chance of winning the car. But talk will not do it. Votes only will count.

The ballot boxes close at twelve o'clock noon next Wednesday for the next count, the result of which will be published in next week's Bulletin. Blue ballots will not be counted after that date unless they are initiated by the contest manager.

The Barrier

The fame of Rex Beach as a writer of stirring, red-blooded tales, with snap in every sentence and punch in every paragraph, is world-wide.

His wonderful stories of life in the Northwest sell by the hundreds of thousands, and are read in book form, in news papers and in magazines by millions of people.

His most vigorous, swift-moving and widely popular story is "The Barrier"—presenting the absorbing problem of "the barrier" of race and blood that seems to lie between the lovers.

Its convincing realism and vivid dramatic qualities are due to the fact that it is a record of the things Rex Beach himself saw and took part in when the lure of gold and the thirst for adventure drew him to the Klondyke.

This was the last American frontier—here civilization and lawlessness met and fought their final great battle for supremacy. Here Rex Beach met in the flesh the wonderfully clear-cut, vividly portrayed characters of "The Barrier"—the old trader with his tragic past; the winsome Neeta, daughter of Nature; the heroic commander of the little army post; the red-handed gambler and "killer," and the quaint, lovable Poison of the Great Heart.

The photo-drama of "The Barrier" represents the most forward step in motion pictures. In this epic of primitive life the picture comes into its own as a medium of dramatic expression.

In "The Barrier" you see life as it is—you forget that a picture is passing before you—you are stirred to the same depths, and lifted to the same heights, as if you stood in person among the scenes it so faithfully reproduces.

The adventure thrills you—the beauty of the love story grips your heart. See it at the Rex on December 7th only.

Killed In Action

The following is a letter received recently by the father of the late Pte. Wm. Anderson from an officer of his battalion. Pte. Anderson was a brother of Mrs. Geo. Kellack and Mrs. Kinnear, and was quite well known in Coleman.

Dear Mr. Anderson,—
It is with the deepest regret that I have to notify you of the death of your son, (442905), Private Wm. Anderson, who was killed in action, along with the remainder of the gun crew on August 9th.

I personally feel his loss, as he was one of my best gun men and could always be relied on to keep cool and collected, even in face of severest shell fire. Owing to his capabilities, I had him noted for an early promotion, and—regret—that his death occurred at such a time. I offer you my sincerest sympathy and wish to console you with the fact that your son died as a brave soldier should in the cause of the right and at duty's post.

Canadians In Flanders

Mr. Stewart Lyon's address since his return from the front, in his capacity as representative of the Canadian press, have been of the most interesting description. He has seen the war through civilian eyes, and he adds those details which appeal more to a civilian than to one familiar by long experience with military practice. Mr. Lyon's tribute to the work of Canadian service in France and Flanders is earnest and unimpeachable. The hospital and Red Cross work generally was noted for efficiency and expedition.

The re-organization of the intelligence department, under Col. Mitchell, he regarded as the main cause of the successes of the Canadian forces. The work of Canadians in various capacities from the channel coast down to the extreme limit of the British lines, he described as marvellous. A contractor who had last been occupied in building railways in Western Canada, was now sitting in his office behind the front directing railway building there with the same sangfroid as at home in peace times. The men worked away with no difference, except that they were under shell fire in France.

The difference in operations he illustrated by an account of the battle of Loos, as contrasted with the taking of Hill 70. In the former battle there were 60,000 casualties, and at the best it could only be regarded as a drawn battle. The new intelligence system set about minute photography of the area of the German trenches. Day after day the slightest changes were observed with a microscope. The wire was systematically cut to pieces, a gigantic task, there being 3500 yards of it on Hill 70, thirty feet thick. This was destroyed in a month's constant shelling, at a cost of approximately $2,800,000 for shells alone, and the battle lasted three hours, with complete success. This was the biggest thing the Canadians had done. The Germans are absolutely on the defence on the western front, and it is only a question of time when the British objective, the Bruges Canal, and the Belgian coast, will be attained.

Word has been received by his family here that Pte. Alex. Easton, who was severely wounded in the legs some months ago, has been ordered back to the trenches. After recovering from his wounds, Alex. took a special course in gas mask work and the day before the order came to return to France he received his discharge as a first sergeant.

The annual meeting of the ratepayers of the Coleman school district will be held in the council chamber next Monday forenoon, from 11 o'clock to noon. Any person dissatisfied with the school board's administration will have an opportunity of presenting their criticisms. "Speak now or forever after hold your peace."

Photos Wanted

The Officer in command of Canadian War Records has asked us to make known that it is desired to compile a complete history in photograph of the Canadians' share in the War, in the same way that all other belligerent countries are compiling similar records.

It is particularly desired to obtain photographs of all officers non-commissioned officers, and men who have served or are now serving in the overseas military forces of Canada, and it is requested that an appeal should be made to this end through these columns.

All officers and other ranks serving overseas may find it difficult to send in their photographs and their relatives are therefore especially appealed to, to send in their photographs for them.

By preference the photographs should be unmounted, and printed on brocade paper in order to ensure permanence. Each photograph should be accompanied by a concise record, not exceeding two or three hundred words, of the subject's military career, including date of enlistment, promotions, distinctions and so on, as this will greatly assist in obtaining a full and accurate record of all concerned.

In addition it is desired to collect all photographs dealing with the mobilization, training and departure of troops together with pictures illustrating reviews, sports, presentations etc. Any photograph of this nature is regarded as a document of historical importance, and it is hoped that the possessors of all such photographs will deem it their duty to send either the originals or copies, which will ultimately be placed in the permanent public archives of the Dominion.

All photographs, which will be acknowledged, should be addressed to the officer in command Canadian War Records, 14 Clifford St., Bond Street, London, W. 1, England.

Victory Bonds

(Calgary Herald)

Following a prospective Victory Loan investor to the top of the new armory in Mowata park, where he was engaged in winding up a windlass. Father Bujalski, a Polish priest from Coleman, Alberta, persuaded his fellow-countryman to subscribe to the Canadian Loan, without even disturbing the fellow at his work. The priest came up to Calgary a few days ago from the south, and addressed a large gathering of Poles in St. Anne's church, East Calgary, dealing principally with the subject of Victory Loans. T. B. Weatherbee, accountant of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, who is quite a friend of Father Bujalski, prevailed upon him to stay over in the city for another day, and on Thursday afternoon the two of them made a tour of Calgary, hunting up all the Polish people.

Needless to say the priest soon had a large number of his people rounded up and $1,000 was taken in during the afternoon's campaign, while many promises were made by others, who intend investing before the end of the month. The party referred to in the opening of this story, applied for $500 worth of bonds and he produced the money from his hip pocket to make payment. Father Bujalski heard of this man, and knowing that he was a full-blooded Pole, and hurried to the armory where he was employed and climbing the ladder of the structure up to the very top the priest sought out the Pole and opened a discussion with him in regard to the Victory Loan. Without letting up on his task of winding the windlass, the foreigner listened to the reverend father and gave him definite assurance that he would invest $500.

LOCAL AND GENERAL

Three weeks from Tuesday next is Christmas day.

Two weeks from Monday is election day. How are you getting?

Mrs. F. G. Graham and Miss Dorothy spent a few days in Calgary this week.

Mrs. Frank Barringham returned Sunday from a week's visit with Coalhurst friends.

Messrs. U. A. Neil, Malcolm Morrison and Rev. D. K. Allan are the enumerators for this section.

Nominations for two school trustees and four councillors will take place in Secretary Ford's office on Monday next between 11 and 12 o'clock in the forenoon.

A grand masquerade ball will take place in the opera house on the evening of December 31st (New Year's Eve) under the auspices of the Coleman town band. This is to be an annual event, and special plans are under way to make this the best event of the kind held for some time. Make a note of the date.

Public meetings have taken place in Coleman this week in the interests of both the Unionist and the Liberal candidates, and good crowds were present on both occasions. As the press committee of both local associations have gone on strike apparently, we have not been favored with reports of these meetings.

Word was received this week by relatives that Pte. D. Dunlop has been killed in action. His widow and young child, who reside here, have the sympathy of the citizens generally.

The whist drive in St. Alban's parish hall on Wednesday evening was quite the best of the series so far held. There was a larger attendance than usual and a very pleasant time was spent by all present—even "those who didn't have no luck at all."

Mr. and Mrs. U. A. Neil have received a cable from England advising them that their son, Pte. N. W. Neil, who enlisted with an Australian battalion, is suffering from slight concussion, and is now in the convalescent depot at Boulogne.

The secretary of the local branch of the Canadian Patriotic Fund, would like those who have not yet paid their subscription for October or November to call and do so either at the bank or the secretary's office—W. L. Ouimette's store.

A Bulletin reader suggests that we are having too many one-sided political meetings these days, and in order to introduce an innovation it is further suggested that a debate be arranged between local enthusiasts only to discuss the questions of the day at a joint meeting to be held in the opera house at some date in the near future. The idea sounds like a pretty good one.

Percy Hagel, the Winnipeg ex-lawyer, who was convicted on a charge of assisting in the escape of one Krafchenko, a man charged with the killing of a bank manager at Morden, Man., a few years ago, was to lecture in Coleman on Wednesday evening. Owing to counter attractions, however, such as whist drives, political meetings, etc., Percy evidently thought prospects were rather poor. So, emulating the mystic Arab, he folded his tent and quietly stole away during the afternoon, and did not even wait to say goodbye to the hotel man, or thank the manager of the opera house for getting the building warm for him.

Increases have recently been made in the salaries of the teachers here. As salaries go elsewhere, however, none of them are as yet overpaid.

Word was received this week in Coleman that Pte. Hugh R. Kay was killed in action Oct. 1917. He was a Presbyterian student who had a mission field at Crow's Nest during the spring and summer of 1915.

Just as we were going to press a report of the Unionist meeting held Wednesday evening came in, but we are forced to hold it back till next issue. Such reports must reach this office not later than Thursday forenoon.

On Sunday next there will be Holy Communion at 8 a. m. at St. Alban's church. Morning prayer and sermon at 10.30, followed by Holy Communion. As it is the first Sunday in the month, there will be no evening service, the priest in charge being at Blairmore, when the service will be at 7.30.

Mr. John McKeagan has tendered his resignation to the International Coal and Coke Co. and will leave at the end of the year for Nova Scotia, where he has received another appointment. Mr. and Mrs. McKeagan and family will leave a vacancy in Coleman that will be hard to fill, and their host of friends here will wish them every success in their new home. Mr. Jos. Emmerson, we understand, and Mr. E. MacDonald, will divide between them the work that Mr. McKeagan has been responsible for at the company's offices.

On Saturday evening, November 24th, Mr. William W. Hoggan was united in marriage to Miss Louisa Rogers. The wedding took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Rogers, the parents of the bride. The Rev. D. K. Allan officiated. Miss Janet Malcolm assisted the bride, and Mr. Chris. Rogers acted as best man. There was a large company of friends to witness the ceremony. Immediately after the ceremony the company sat down to an elaborate wedding supper. The bride was the recipient of many handsome presents.

Immediately after the outbreak of the war The Bulletin entered into an arrangement with an Alberta daily paper whereby we were to receive a photograph of every Coleman soldier whose name appeared on the casualty list. Up to a few weeks ago the plan worked fairly well, but recently a cog has slipped somewhere, and while pictures of soldiers from Coleman have appeared in the daily, we have not been able to secure our copy for the Bulletin. We have therefore concluded to eliminate these cuts from our columns in future, as it would not do to print any of them unless we can depend on getting all of them.
